For the Luddite (反对技术进步的人)

根据以下材料，回答{TSE}题

Do you have any idea what you would like to be and do after graduation? A lot of people don't begin thinking about careers until they reach junior or senior year, which, in my opinion, is too late.

When people are trying to decide what they want to do, it helps to know something they love.

Ever since I was little, I've always been doing someone's hair, make-up or nails, starting with Barbie dolls and progressing to humans. Over the years my family has really inspired me to do this and now I fix friends' and family members' hair for weddings, dances and other big events.

I have been thinking about what I would like to do for a career since middle school. I did some research and discovered that I might really enjoy being a cosmetologist, so I went to my hair stylist and asked her lots of questions about what it takes to reach her level and what she would recommend.

I do. I considered her advice and then did more research.

I used Aveda's website to get information on the Aveda Institute and what type of credit (贷款) I would need from high school to apply. I found their institute has three parts: theoretical knowledge, practical experience, and professional business-building skills. For the past few years, I have been looking at Aveda in more and more detail. This school not only offers cosmetology, but also massage therapy. I grew up in Minnesota (美国中北部的一个州), so I plan to apply to the institute in Minneapolis that several people have highly recommended. It helps students become "future industry leaders in hair care, skin care, makeup and total body wellness". It is affordable and everyone there is friendly and understanding.

Having done the groundwork and thinking about what I'd like to do after high school, I know that I will definitely pursue my dream of becoming a cosmetologist.

People have smoked cigarettes for a longtime now. The tobacco which is used to make cigarettes was first grown in what is now part of the United States. Christopher Columbus, who discovered America, saw the Indians smoking. Soon the dried leaves were transported to Europe. In the late 1800s, the Turks made cigarettes popular.

Cigarette smoke contains at least two harmful substances, tar and nicotine. Tar, which forms as the tobacco burns, damages the lungs and therefore affects breathing. Nicotine, which is found in the leaves, causes the heart to beat faster and increases the breathing rate. Nicotine in large amounts can kill a person by stopping a person's breathing muscles. Smokers usually take in small amounts that the body can quickly break down.

Nicotine can make new smokers feel dizzy (头晕) or sick to their stomachs. The heart rate for young smokers increases 2 to 3 beats per minute. Nicotine also lowers skin temperature and reduces blood flow in the legs and feet. It plays an important role in increasing smokers' risk of heart disease and stroke.

根据以下材料，回答{TSE}题

To learn an instrument such as the violin or accordion (手风琴) takes years. The job opportunities for musicians are scarce and competition is fierce. Then why are more people than ever before paying a lot of good cash to get their children the best music teaching they can afford?

The secret lies in the influence of music on the whole person. It has been found that learning a musical instrument actually increases a person's IQ over time. Different instruments and different types of music have varying effects, with classical music and the string family coming out on top, potentially increasing your IQ by up to 12 points!

When is a good time to start learning music? Experts have found that even the fetus (胎儿) can benefit from listening to classical music. Surround yourself and your family with good music from the first. The Suzuki Piano Method teaches children from the age of 3 years piano, with two lessons per week. From preschool, children can learn to read music and play from sheet music. Progress in learning your instrument is directly proportional (成比例的) to the amount of practicing.

Is there such a thing as an unmusical child? Shinichi Suzuki proposes that music is the native home language of all human beings and therefore nobody can be "unmusical". Of course there are exceptional talents, compared to which others may seem to be slower learners.

Is there any benefit for adults in starting an instrument? Apart from the purely relaxing aspect, yes. Learning an instrument can earn even adults additional IQ points, and as an added benefit it improves your health by reducing your stress levels. Your social life may benefit too, if you are prepared to come out of your box and join occasions such as Ceilidhs (musical get-togethers) or arrange house concerts. It has been established that people who play instruments tend to be more emotionally balanced and more patient with themselves, others and life in general.

So go ahead, sign up for that amateur orchestra, dust off your old trombone (长号) or take your first real six-string down from the attic (阁楼); get out there and play!

根据以下材料，回答{TSE}题

Beauty has always been regarded assomething praise worthy. Almost everyone thinks attractive people are happierand healthier, have better marriages and have more respectable occupations.

Personal consultants give them better advicefor finding jobs. Even judges are softer on attractive defendants (被告). But in the executivecircle, beauty can become a liability.

While attractiveness is a positive factorfor a man on his way up the executive ladder, it is harmful to a woman.

Handsome male executives were thought as havingmore integrity than plainer men; effort and ability were thought to account fortheir success.

Attractive female executives were consideredto have less integrity than unattractive ones; their success was attributed notto ability but to factors such as luck.

All unattractive women executives werethought to have more integrity and to be more capable than the attractivefemale executives. Interestingly, though, the rise of the unattractiveovernight successes was attributed more to personal relationships and less toability than that of attractive overnight successes.

Why are attractive women not thought to beable? An attractive woman is thought to be more feminine and an attractive manmore masculine (有男子气概的) than the less attractive ones.

Thus, an attractive woman has anadvantage in traditionally female jobs, but an attractive woman in a traditionallymasculine position appears to lack the "masculine" qualitiesrequired.

This is true even in politics. When the only clue is how he or shelooks, people treat men and women differently, says Anne Bowman, who recently publisheda study on the effects of attractiveness on political candidates. She asked 125 undergraduate students to rank two groups of photographs, one of men and one of women, in order of attractiveness. The students were told the photographs were of candidates for political offices. They were asked to rank them again, in the order they would vote for them.

The results showed that attractive males utterly defeated unattractive men, but the women who had been ranked most attractive invariably received the fewest votes.

{TS} The underlined word "liability" (in Para.1) most probably means "_____."

- A、disadvantage
- B、advantage
- C、misfortune
- D、trouble

52

In traditionally female jobs, attractiveness _____.

- A、makes women look more honest and capable
- B、strengthens the feminine qualities required
- C、is of primary importance to women
- D、often enables women to succeed quickly

53

Bowman's experiment reveals that when it comes to politics, attractiveness _____.

- A、turns out to be an obstacle to men
- B、is more of an obstacle than an advantage to women
- C、affects men and women alike
- D、has as little effect on men as on women

54

It can be inferred from the passage that people's views on beauty are often _____.

- A、practical
- B、supportive
- C、old-fashioned
- D、one-sided

55

The author writes this passage to _____.

- A、give advice to job-seekers who are attractive
- B、discuss the negative aspects of being attractive
- C、demand equal rights for women

Good afternoon, everyone!

The topic of my speech today is "Being a good partner".

In our daily life and study, if we want to accomplish our work efficiently, we must all learn to cooperate with others. Cooperation can save us a lot of time and energy. Additionally, we can learn much from our partners by cooperating with them. When we cooperate with someone we like, we will feel very happy. We can share our pleasure (joys) and sadness (sorrows) with him. But it challenges us to get along with others to cooperate with someone we dislike (hate). Under this circumstance, we should focus on our work, instead of (rather than) our partners. Perhaps in working together with him for a long time, we'll learn (find out) that he is a man to get along well with.

How can we become a good partner? In my opinion, we should try to listen to others. If they make mistakes, we also try to point them out. We mustn't embarrass others to make them in an unfavorable position.

Thank you for your listening!
